The objectives for this session were to enable participants to:

1. Define the "good" death.
2. Identify two current hallmarks of hospice and palliative care.
3. Define the benefits of 'grief work' prior to death.
4. Evaluate the arts as both professional and personal resource.

| Outstanding. Informative. Moving and humorous.  |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
| Great topic and presented well.   |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
| Engaging speaker, funny.  |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
| Great visuals. Easy, enjoyable presentation style.  |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
| Very good speaker.  |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
| Struggled to relate to this presentation.   |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
| I thought this was going to be more of a discussion regarding assisted suicide and the ethics surrounding this issue. So I was a little disappointed but I still enjoyed the speaker very much. |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
| I loved your presentation. You opened up discussion and brought different understanding to art. You should write a book.... When I die.. Please make sure my mascara is on.                     |                            |    |    |     |              |             |     |
